Hancock County Sheriff Ricky Adam said a Kiln mother was forced to shoot her 21-year-old son Friday morning in an act of self defense.

Authorities say an apparent domestic dispute at the mother's home, on Cameron Drive off Rocky Hill Dedeaux Road, is what led to the fatal shooting.

"An argument of some type occurred," Adams said. "then the son

According to Adam, Matthew Boudan's mother had been having ongoing issues with her son. In fact, Adam said, the issues were so severe she had to get a restraining Adam said Boudan had just recently been released from a Louisiana prison. It is unclear at this time if

Man sent for psychiatric evaluation after allegedly picking fights in parking lot

A suspect's dog apparently attacked Waveland police officers on Thursday while they were attempting to arrest the man in a public parking lot, Waveland Police Chief David Allen said. In an attempt to stop the dog from further attacks, one officer took "extreme measures," Allen said, and shot the dog. Officers received a call in reference to a man who was walking his dog and trying to fight people in a shopping center parking lot near Dirt Cheap around 4:15 p.m. Thursday, Allen said. The call came just after an armed robbery had taken place nearby and much of the department was searching the streets for the armed suspect, Allen said.

The man reportedly was walking his medium-sized, mixed-breed dog on a leash. After refusing to leave, Allen said, the man was told he was under arrest. A struggle occurred between several officers

Firefighters work Kiln blaze

BY STACEY CATO

Firefighters in north Hancock County battled yet another house fire Tuesday night off Firetower Rd. in Kiln. The call came in just after 8 p.m., officials said. A vacated home on Laterre Drive was reportedly engulfed in flames. No injuries were reported and details are limited at this time but the vacant home off Firetower Rd in Kiln, according to officials, was, for the most part, destroyed by fire, smoke and water damage. Officials said neighbors nearby in the community reported the blaze. They

Hyde-Smith defeats Espy; Judge Alfonso reclaims her former chancery court seat

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

Tuesday's runoff election was a big win for the women -- U.S. Sen. Cindy Hyde-Smith won her bid to be the first woman to be elected to serve as a U.S. Senator for the state of Mississippi; and Judge Margaret Alfonso won her bid to re-take her post as Chancery Court judge for District 8, Place 3. "Voter turnout has been very good today," Hancock County Circuit Clerk Karen Ruhr said Tuesday after the polls had closed. "It's not what it was on the 6th (during the general election), but for a runoff election, we've seen good participation." Hyde-Smith, a Republican, defeated Democratic opponent Mike Espy -- a former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture -- by nearly 70,000 votes in their runoff election, earning the right to continue to serve the remainder of former Sen. Thad Cochran's term. In Hancock County, Hyde-Smith earned 8,701 votes to Espy's 3,045 in unofficial totals, with about 43 affidavit ballots waiting to be counted. Statewide, Hyde-Smith earned 474,471 votes to Espy's 405,486. "While this is not the result we were hoping for, I am proud of the historic campaign we ran and grateful for the support we received across Mississippi," Espy said in a press release after Hyde-Smith's victory was declared. "We built the largest grassroots organization our state has seen in a generation, through a coalition of voters who shared our belief that Mississippi's future will be brighter than our past." In the runoff race for Chancery Court District 8, Place 3, incumbent Judge Sandy Steckler and Judge Margaret Alfonso ran neck-and-neck, with Alfonso claiming victory by a narrow margin. Alfonso's vote tally overall was 30,439; Steckler's total was 29,894. In Hancock County, Steckler brought home 5,703 votes to Alfonso's 4,951. There was no clear winner at press time Tuesday. Hancock election officials said Tuesday that affidavit ballots will be counted on Wednesday.

Judge Margaret Alfonso

Rural Mississippians Deserve Internet Service the Same as Anyone Else

Ask any elected official in Mississippi if people living in rural areas deserve the same quality of life as people living in cities and you will probably get a quick “yes” but, that isn’t what current state policy says. Internet service has become a necessity for modern life, but far too many Mississippians live in the “digital dark,” lacking access to affordable, reliable internet service. Because they lack internet service, many of our people cannot compete for jobs, take online courses, access telehealth services or even simply browse the internet.

Mississippi has lost population over the past several years and we have learned recently that millennials are leaving Mississippi at a faster pace than any other state. Young people will not stay in a place where they are unplugged from the rest of the world because they lack internet service. If you doubt this is an issue, drive by your local fast food restaurant and take a look at people sitting in their cars doing homework using wireless internet provided by the business. The lack of affordable, reliable and adequate internet service in Mississippi is a crisis and is one that we had better fix, if we want our children and grandchildren to stay here.

In the 1930s, electricity was to rural people what high-speed internet service is today. Back then, electricity was changing lives and opening opportunities for those who had it and rapidly closing the door on those did not. At that time, rural Mississippi was literally in the dark. Rural people had no electricity, cooked on wood stoves, washed clothes on scrub boards, hand-pumped water from wells and studied by candlelight. Out of pure determination, Mississippi created the model that electrified America. In 1934, a group of citizens gathered in McPeters Furniture Store in Corinth and decided to do whatever it took to “bring the lights” to rural Alcorn County. They formed Alcorn Electric Power Association, the very first electric cooperative in the country. The idea quickly spread and the people of Pontotoc, Lee and Prentiss Counties came together to fix the lack of electricity in their communities and soon the rest of America followed. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt modeled parts of the New Deal on what was called “The Corinth Experiment.” Rural America got electricity thanks to Mississippi. Fixing our own problems is in the DNA of Mississippians. In 2018, we should use the same Mississippi spirit that brought electricity to rural households to bring high-speed internet service to rural people. In every state bordering Mississippi, and across the

Wicker Participates in Roundtable With President Trump on Prison Reform

Mississippi Event Sheds Light on Repeat Arrests, Efforts to Help Nonviolent Offenders

On his recent visit to Gulfport, President Trump convened a roundtable discussion to highlight opportunities to reform our criminal justice system. I participated in this important discussion, along with Vice President Pence, Sen. Lindsey Graham, Sen. Cindy Hyde-Smith, Gov. Phil Bryant, and other leaders in our state who are working to get these reforms right.

The need for prison reform stems from troubling recidivism rates, in which criminal behavior is repeated after a prisoner serves his or her sentence. In 2016, the Bureau of Justice Statistics reported that nearly half of federal prisoners put under community supervision are re-arrested within five years. The bureau’s study found that state recidivism numbers were even worse, with 77 percent of state prisoners re-arrested in the same time period.

Like the President, I believe in a strong judicial system that keeps Americans safe and holds criminals accountable. Our nation is governed by laws, and those laws should be enforced. However, we cannot ignore the pervasive social and financial costs of crime, as well as our responsibility to address these challenges in our communities.

A Focus on Rehabilitation

High recidivism rates reflect the difficulties that many prisoners experience when reentering society.

At the roundtable, the President heard from Mississippians who work in law enforcement, our courts, our prisons, and our faith communities about the need to help these individuals get back on their feet. In working with prisoners every day, these dedicated Mississippians have seen firsthand how alternative sentencing and second-chance employment can help. As Mississippi Department of Corrections Commissioner Pelicia Hall noted in our discussion, lowering recidivism rates could save the state $264 million over a decade.

In addition to cost savings, these efforts are important to supporting safe, drug-free communities. For example, with support of private industries and job training in prison, individuals who pose no risk to others can find meaningful work in their communities after being released. With the proper drug rehabilitation, they can overcome problems with substance abuse.

I have been a longtime supporter of Mississippi’s drug court programs and have participated in a number of drug court graduations over the years. These programs are designed to help nonviolent drug offenders turn their lives around, using strict judicial supervision and mandatory drug tests rather than jail time. As the opioid epidemic continues in our nation, programs like drug courts are more and more important.

Bipartisan Approach Gains Momentum

I am also eager to see the Senate work on a promising bipartisan bill for criminal justice reform. Known as the “FIRST STEP Act,” the legislation has the support of the Trump Administration and a strong majority in the House of Representatives, which overwhelmingly passed the bill earlier this year. It has also earned the endorsement of many

NASA Continues to Invest in an Incredible Space Exploration Future

Perhaps you were posed this question as a young school student: Given the choice, would you rather receive $1 million in 30 days or a total amount that begins with one penny on Day One and doubles every day for 30 days?

The exercise teaches one to examine choices carefully, especially ones that offer choices between short-term and long-term effects. While $1 million in one month sounds good and certain, the better choice is the penny that doubles every day. You begin with one penny, double to two on the second day, to four on the third day and so on – until Day 30 when your doubling total reaches a mind-boggling $5,368,709.12.

Talk about a wise investment.

The exercise is a timely one when you think about

NASA and the future of space exploration for this country. Everything in that arena seems to be “in planning” or “in the works.” It is only natural to wonder if real progress is being made.

Indeed, real progress is being made and concrete steps are being taken. NASA – and the nation – are moving forward, closer and closer to the day we will fly farther than ever into unexplored space. Just this week, NASA made a major announcement regarding its Commercial Lunar Payload Services initiative.

The agency declared nine companies eligible to provide delivery services to the Moon. Moving ahead, these companies will bid to fill a critical need in delivering necessary equipment and technologies to the Moon.

Actual missions are still to come, but the selection of the companies is a step forward, an investment in the future success of NASA’s plan to return to the Moon and continue on to such deep space destinations as Mars.

The United States first sent humans to the Moon almost 50 years ago. The golden anniversary of that mission actually comes this summer. On those early missions, astronauts stayed a few days on the lunar surface and returned.

This time, the country has been challenged to return to the Moon to stay.

The Moon provides a place for NASA to develop and test technologies and capabilities needed for longer missions into space and offers economic potential for the nation. Just as 50 years ago, a return to the Moon also will serve as an inspirational and rallying point for the nation and the next generation of space explorers.

The Commercial Lunar Payload Services initiative is a key to enabling the innovative and sustainable lunar exploration approach called for in the president's Space Policy Directive-1. It fulfills the directive's vision of NASA partnering with American companies in achieving long-term exploration and scientific study of the Moon.

In response to the vision, NASA plans to work with commercial partners to deliver and build a lunar orbiting platform called Gateway that will serve as a staging point for missions to the lunar surface and to deep space destinations such as Mars. Think of Gateway as a lunar space station where astronauts can develop technologies and capabilities needed for deep space exploration.

It is an ambitious plan – and focusing on the big picture to come is exciting. However, it is just as exciting to watch today's progress toward it. As the nation's largest propulsion test center, Stennis Space Center understands the importance of that progress.

It is the same path of progress followed in the Apollo Program when Stennis tested the Saturn V stages that later carried astronauts to the Moon. It is the same step-by-step work Stennis performed in testing the engines and propulsion system that powered 135 historic space shuttle missions from 1981 to 2011.

Now, we are working with commercial companies that already are – or will be – NASA's partners in space. Stennis Space Center also is testing the Aerojet Rocketdyne RS-25 engines that will power the new Space Launch System (SLS) rocket, which will carry astronauts on deep space missions and help build Gateway. Soon, we will test the actual SLS rocket stages.

Each test represents a step, a move forward as new engine components are tested and additional data is gathered on RS-25 performance. Each test adds to the excitement, as does each space program announcement and each milestone met.

With every such action, anticipation grows and the envisioned day grows nearer when American astronauts launch from this country deeper than ever into space, to destinations no human has ever reached.

Return on investment has never looked better.

nation, electric cooperatives owned by the people, are bringing affordable, high-speed internet service to their members. Fiber-to-the-home internet service through rural electric cooperatives is happening in almost every state, but Mississippi. Currently, several electric cooperatives in our state want to provide internet service to their people and many more have conducted studies to look into the idea. Sadly, a 1942 state law is handcuffing them from providing internet service. This summer, the statewide association of electric cooperatives voted unanimously to ask legislators to change that law. This is a simple fix that could save our rural communities, keep our children and grandchildren home and change the future of our state.

Earlier in November, the association of electric cooperatives presented the "Mississippi Broadband Enabling Act" to legislators. This proposed change in state law does not take one penny from the state treasury and doesn't prohibit any other telecommunications company from providing internet service anywhere. The proposed law gives rural Mississippi a chance to get the internet service they desperately

GERALDINE SMITH
Geraldine Ethel Mary Smith (Gems) died peacefully at Courtyard Retirement Home in Lafayette, LA, on Nov. 22, 2018. She was born July 9, 1933, in Metairie, LA, the only child of Alexander Gustave Smith and Hazel Anne (Nan) Halpin Smith. As an adult, she and her mother moved to Waveland MS, where she was employed as a switch-board operator for Hancock Bank, until Hurricane Katrina destroyed her home. She then settled in Lafayette to be near her cousin, Stanislaus Halpin, and his wife, Danna, who enjoyed many pleasant times with her. Gems was quiet, soft spoken, and generous, always having small gifts for friends and family. She also enjoyed reading and listening to music, especially Mario Lanza, and devoted herself to the care of many beloved cats and dogs in her lifetime. She was preceded in death by her parents, and is survived by her cousin, Stanislaus, his wife Danna, and their daughter, Caroline Draughon. Her ashes will be interred next to her parents in the Waveland Municipal Cemetery where a brief burial ceremony will be performed at 2 PM on Monday, December 10, 2018. All are welcome.

he had been staying at his mother's home or if he went there looking for a place to stay.
"At this time, we know the mother is extremely upset," Adam said. "We are trying to sort out all the details, but we know she had to do what she had to do. She had to protect herself."
Adam said Boudan held a knife to his mother's throat and threatened to kill her in the living room of her country home. She was somehow able to get free and head toward the bedroom, Adam said, but he followed her in a fit of rage. That's when she grabbed a gun and shot him.

Boudan was found by paramedics in the bedroom of his mother's home suffering from multiple gunshots.
Authorities called for a life flight but Boudan was too unstable to fly. He was transferred by AMR to Hancock Medical Center, where a short time later he was pronounced dead.
No arrests have been made. Investigators found evidence at the scene to corroborate the account, Adam said. Boudan has a lengthy criminal history which includes violence, Adam said, and the matter is currently considered as an act of self defense.

Dog

and the man as they attempted to take him into custody. The fight continued, Allen said, and the dog became scared and attacked several of the responding officers, biting at least one on the upper thigh.
"The dog was still an active threat and the fight between officers and the man continued," Allen said.
The dog became even more panicky, Allen explained, but his owner kept hold of the leash. At some point, Allen said, the animal backed away and positioned himself in front of a parked car just before making the motions to attack yet another officer.

"One of the officers at the scene saw the dog was ready to strike again," Allen said. "He felt he had a backdrop for the bullet in order to shoot safely, so took the shot."
The bullet reportedly hit the dog in the hind leg-area, avoiding fatal contact.
Waveland Animal Control responded to the scene and transported the animal to a Diamondhead veterinarian for emergency assistance. The dog was treated and -- as of press time Friday -- is reportedly alive and doing well, Allen said. Officers were eventually able to get the man to the ground and handcuffed him. He was allegedly found to be under the influence of narcotics and was in possession of drug paraphernalia, Allen said.
American Medical Response responded to the scene. The man was transported to Hancock Medical Center for a psychological evaluation. Criminal charges are pending at this time, Allen said.

One upset witness questioned the officer's decision to open fire in a crowded public parking lot. The witness asked why officers did not use a taser to take the man and his dog down.
Allen said a taser can be used on a human to gain compliance; however, when used on an animal, it will only increase its panic and make it more angry.
The officer who was bitten is doing fine, Allen said, and did not seek medical attention. Another officer, who suffered minor injuries during the struggle, is said to be doing well, too, Allen said Friday.

items in the front of her pants. The vehicle came to a stop near mile marker 29.
The trooper approached the vehicle and identified the driver as Jonathan Jarvis and the passenger as Aaliyah Williamson. Neither Jarvis nor Williamson possessed a valid Mississippi driver's license. The trooper could smell the odor of marijuana being emitted from the vehicle. Jarvis and Williamson were asked to exit the vehicle. While exiting the vehicle, Jarvis told the trooper he possessed a weapon in the vehicle. The trooper ordered Williamson to remove the items from her pants, which was revealed as approximately 247 grams of methamphetamine "ice." A search of the vehicle revealed 29.5 dosage units of Alprazolam, 14 dosage units of Acetaminophen/Oxycodone, approximately 89 grams of marijuana, approximately one ounce of promethazine syrup, digital scales, plastic baggies, two cell phones, and a stolen Smith and Wesson pistol. Two and a half grams of methamphetamine was also found in Williamson's purse.

Williamson pled guilty on May 11, 2018. Jarvis pled guilty on May 5, 2018 to conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute methamphetamine and possession of a firearm in furtherance of a drug trafficking crime. On August 21, 2018, he was sentenced by Judge Ozerden to serve 220 months in federal prison.
The case was investigated by the Drug Enforcement Administration and prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Shundral H. Cole.

Soccer action returns after holiday break

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

With the holiday break behind us, area soccer action is back in full swing.

The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws (4-4-1) blanked the Hancock Hawks 8-0 on Wednesday, November 28th.

Carter Landry scored a hat trick plus one in the game as the Rocks enjoyed a 3-0 lead at intermission.

Hancock had shots on goal but could not find the back of the net.

Also scoring for SSC were Austin Schruoff, Lee Negrotto, Caleb Allen and Alex Koons.

SSC head coach Danny Patton commented, "We had a solid effort all around tonight. Offensively, we were able to finish our shots and we were solid on the defensive side of the field. Hancock had several opportunities and, unfortunately, they were not able to finish. We are preparing to get into the meat of division play so we need to clean up our mistakes and get ready."

Also on Tuesday, Pass Christian (6-0-1) beat St. Patrick 3-1. Jeremiah Trest scored twice and Caden Councilman scored once to pace Pass Christian.

expected to continue rising. "I'm proud to work for Dr. Breerwood and Proud to be a Wildcat," commented David Collum, Electronics Instructor at PRCC.

One of the reasons community colleges like PRCC are seeing more enrollment is due to tuition increases at state and private universities. Dr. Breerwood stated students who attend PRCC save $10,000 on average by enrolling at the two-year college as a freshman. Breerwood also urged all in attendance to take into consideration what they could do to contribute to the continued growth of PRCC. The main request was to help the college to continue to tell it's story providing PRCC the chance to give more students the chance to start their success journey.

Satisfying recipes: What's for Breakfast?

BY LINDA BIGLER
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Breakfast is supposed to be the most important meal of the day. I have no idea who started that dreadful rumor. Not being a morning person, hearing that oft repeated sentence sends chills up my sleeping spine.

For those of you who get up with the sun and also for those who would rather sleep in, I have some recipes that hopefully will satisfy all of you.

Some of these can be prepared the night before and be put in the oven before you start your morning coffee and drag the rest of the family out of bed.

This first recipe dates back to the 1970s, but it is a good one.

The batter can be kept in the refrigerator for up to six days.

You can feel good about sending the children to school after having a breakfast of freshly baked muffins and some juice or fruit.

Muffins for Days
3 cups whole bran cereal
1 cup boiling water
2 cups buttermilk or sour milk
1 and one half cup of sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 stick butter, melted
2 and one half cups unbleached all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking soda
One half teaspoon salt
One half cup dried cranberries

One half cup toasted chopped pecans or walnuts
Place one cup of the cereal in a small bowl and pour boiling water over it. Stir and set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl, combine the remainder of the cereal, milk, sugar, eggs, and melted butter. Gently stir until combined.

In a large mixing bowl, combine the flour, baking soda and salt. Toss to combine

Add the soaked bran and the bran and milk mixture to the flour mixture.

Stir until combined, do not over mix. The batter will not be smooth.

Fold in the cranberries and nuts.

Store in a covered container for up to six days or you can bake them all at once and freeze until needed.

When ready to bake, preheat the oven to 400 degrees. Line a muffin tin with cupcake papers and fill until almost full.

Bake for about twenty minutes. Serve with butter or jam.

Makes about 30 muffins

The next recipe is prepared the night before and baked the next morning.

Baked French Toast
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1 stick butter
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
10 slices of day old French bread about one and a half inches thick
2 cups half and half or milk

4 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Place brown sugar, butter and corn syrup in a microwave safe bowl and microwave on high for about 45 seconds, stir and microwave another 45 seconds.

Pour into a 9X13 inch baking dish and tilt dish until the mixture coats the bottom.

Arrange bread slices over the mixture.

Meet Sadie Fawn, our sweet senior lady. Our vet feels that she is 13 plus years old, but still has years of life ahead of her. This "golden girl" may have some health concerns related to aging, but she is full of life, and has lots of love to give her new family. Sadie Fawn has advanced cataracts, so she is vision impaired as well as deaf. She has arthritis, but is not in pain. She takes Glucosamine to aid her joints and hips. She has some fatty lumps that are associated with aging, and not a medical concern. Due to her advanced age, Sadie Fawn has lost much of her bladder control, so she does need to be walked often, or supervised in a fenced backyard while she potties; she is puppy pad trained, however. This senior Boston Terrier mix deserves a loving, responsible retirement home where she'll be cherished and appreciated. She may be a grandma, but she loves to hang out in the lobby with the puppies that she has befriended, and she gets along with other adult dogs, as well. She is such a sweetheart, and loves to be in the company of people. She seems oblivious to cats. If you feel as though you can provide Sadie Fawn with a loving home, and can meet her needs, please contact the shelter at 228 466 4516. Visit our Facebook page, Hancock County Animal Shelter, MS, to see more pictures of Sadie Fawn, and of the many other adoptable furbabies looking for their forever homes.

The Story of Christmas Seals

One stormy December night in 1903, a mail carrier named Elinar Holboell was working late in a small post office just outside of Copenhagen, Denmark.

Glancing out the window, he noticed two children dressed in rags. As he went back to his work sorting the happy holiday cards, he was troubled by the hungry and cold children.

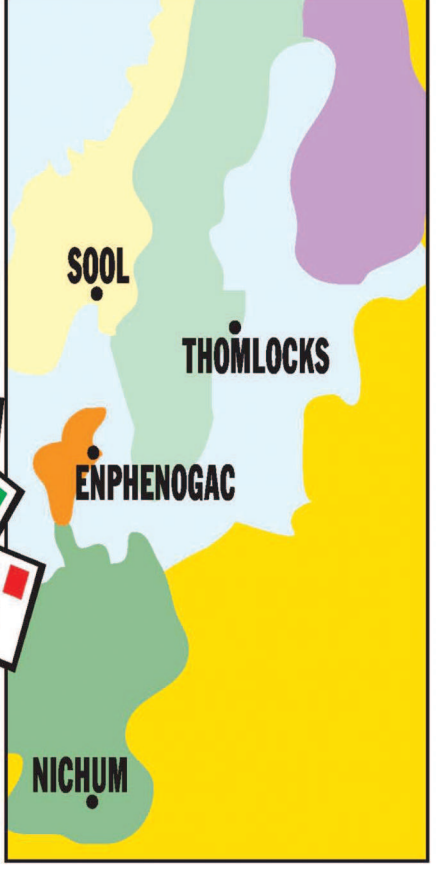

Suddenly he had an idea. Suppose that every letter carried an extra stamp, and the money from these stamps helped unfortunate children.

In 1904, Elinar and his fellow postal workers created a special stamp to help children. It had a picture of the queen of Denmark, Queen Louise.

The Danes bought four million seals that first year. The funds were used to build hospitals for children with tuberculosis (TB). At that time, TB was the leading cause of death.

How Christmas Seals Came to America

Denmark's neighbors, Norway and Sweden, saw what a great power the people could be, and in 1905 they started selling Christmas Seals.

But when an American woman wanted to use Christmas Seals to save a small hospital in Pennsylvania, she ran into problems. The post office would not let its workers sell the seals.

When a young newspaper writer saw the seals, he told his boss, "Just look—a penny apiece—within everyone's reach—think how they'll carry the news of what people can do for themselves—what a slogan, STAMP OUT TUBERCULOSIS!"

The newspaper told the story and sold the seals at their front counter. The first day the stamps went on sale, a little newsboy who was too small to see over the counter came in and, reaching up with a penny, said, "Gimme one. Me sister's got it."

Stamp Out Tuberculosis

Soon, countries around the world started selling Christmas Seals to help people with TB. Today, TB is not the threat that it was 60 years ago. But there is still a need for help. Today the money from the sale of Christmas Seals helps people with asthma, bronchitis and other diseases of the lungs.

Christmas Seals By Kids!

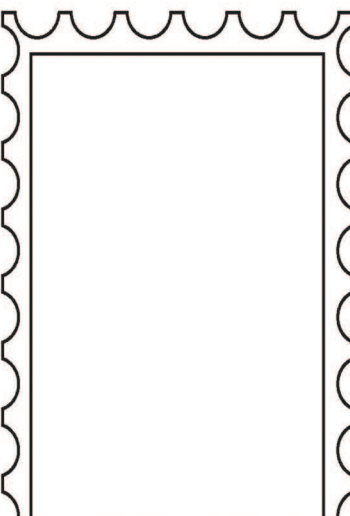

The American Lung Association had a coloring contest for kids in the past and used the drawings (one winner from each state) on Christmas Seal designs in 1975, and 1977 through 1980.

They did this again in 1995 and 1996 thanks to a sponsorship from Triaminic. The contest was discontinued when sponsorship ended in 1997.

But just for fun, you can still design a Christmas Seal. Use the space below to draw what you think would make a good Christmas Seal.

ARE YOU HAVING TROUBLE SLEEPING? TRY THIS!

BY GARY ANDREWS
GARY@GADEVOTIONALS.COM

On many occasions I have heard people say, "I didn't sleep very well last night." I have heard my wife say this and many times it has happened to me.

Reading a passage written by Norman Vincent Peale has really enlightened me on why many of us do not sleep very well. He told of a man in a hotel dining room one morning that complained of a sleepless night. He told him how he tossed and turned and was more exhausted when he got out of bed than when he went to bed. He explained that he needed to quit watching the news at night and then go to be with an ear full of trouble.

Many of us face this same situation everyday of our lives. We are so tired at night we think nothing will be able to keep us from getting the rest and sleep we need. I have found this to be very true because I have had some sleepless nights because of the ritual I have before I turn in. On many occasions I have turned on the television to watch the news and become so disgusted as to what is happening in the world today that it creates a subconscious feeling within me that I can't seem to get rid of. Then I try to sleep to little avail. Tossing and turning throughout the night creates weariness within me and I am tired all through the next day. I think of things I should have taken care of. Sometimes I dream of financial situations that could create problems for me and, in many instances, these are problems I have no control over and aren't even related to me. I go to bed with the problems of the world bothering me just as many of you do. Dr. Peale spoke of another man in the dining room that spoke up and said, "I had a grand night. Of course, I used my go-to-sleep plan which never fails to work." The man went on to explain that as a young boy his father, a farmer, would gather the family in the parlor at bedtime and read from the Bible and have a time of prayer. After this he would go to bed and sleep like a top. When he left home he got away from the reading of the Bible and prayer time and, like many of us, started enduring the sleepless nights. He said he only prayed when he was in a jam knowing the Lord would guide him in the right direction. After a while the man and his wife started reading the Bible and having a prayer time every night before they went to bed. He said that he has been sleeping better and things have improved in his life as well. He turned to the other man and said, "I didn't go to bed with an ear full of trouble. I went to sleep with a mind full of peace."

As a physician once said, "Many of my patients have nothing wrong with them except their thoughts. So I have a favorite prescription I write for some. It is a verse from the Bible, Romans 12:2" All of us need to read and memorize this Bible verse. This verse helps in the transforming of our mind and though process and will help us produce health and well-being.
